years and has been more active than the average pugilist. Abe Attell is still at the head of his class, and what is more, it is not unlikely that he will earn the distinction of being a dual champion, for he aspires to the lightweight title now held by Wolgast. Attell is undoubtedly a remarkable boxer, and just as soon as he cleans up a few of the second raters in the lightweight class he will try to get on with Moran and Wolgast, both of whom he feels confident of beating. While not a rough fighter nor one blessed with a terrific punch, Attell is an artist with the gloves and his ring generalship makes it most difficult for a stronger and harder hitter to make much of an impression on him. It would be a remarkable thing that after fighting almost incessantly for ten years Attell should gain possession of a second championship title, and it really looks as if

NEW YORK, December 6.-In response behalf of Abe Attell, featherweight champion( Packey McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, has agreed to a match to be weighing to be done at 6 p.m., four hours before ring time. Attell will therefore give away about twelve pounds, for he will not weight more than 124, while Mc-

McFarland, it will be remembered, received much praise from a majority of the English boxing critics, who asserted that he should have won the referee's verdict. It is a matter of record that Welsh refused to make another match, for which he was roundly scored. Since returning to this country McFarland has challenged Wolgast in vain. He recently outpointed Fighting
